About: Heike Oberlin and Shiju Alex will introduce the open source, online databases ‘Gundert Portal’ and ‘Granthappura’ (ഗ്രന്ഥപ്പുര | Kerala Digital Archive), presenting their history and relationship and demonstrating their use through examples. ‘Granthappura’ was started in 2009 by Shiju Alex as a volunteer-driven digitization project. In June 2022 it became part of the ‘Indic Digital Archive Foundation’, a non-profit organization for the digitization of Indic-language documents. ‘Granthappura’ has a constantly growing collection of 2500+ digitized artefacts related to Kerala, among them the first Malayalam printed book and first Malayalam dictionary. In 2012-13 Granthappura volunteers approached Heike Oberlin with a request to digitize the Kerala documents at Tübingen’s University library, in particular Hermann Gundert’s legacy. Thus started a digitization project funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG) in 2016–18, that resulted in the ‘Gundert Portal’, an open source database run by the University Library of Tübingen. It contains printed and lithographed books, manuscripts and pamphlets, mainly in Malayalam, but also in other South Indian languages. About 137,000 pages from 849 titles have been digitized, including more than 140 manuscripts (also palm leaf). Nearly 24,000 pages were transcribed into machine-readable Malayalam script by Indian collaborators coordinated by Shiju Alex.

Seventh in a series of lectures organised by IIC-International Research Division with the support of Ministry of External Affairs
